BRAA offers adventures in plein air painting

by Lois Stephens

Many artists enjoy the freedom and exhilaration of painting outdoors. Thanks to arrangements by Ruth Lefko, plein air events were recently held at a lovely private home and garden in Blacksburg (May 7) and at a scenic farm in Fairlawn (May 14).

There's nothing like direct observation — hearing the rushing water you're painting, or feeling the breeze that's rolling across the field, or seeing the range of colors that your camera can't quite capture. Granted, that breeze sometimes turns to high winds and your spot in the shade may change to blazing sun on your head. And then there are the insects. But many agree the experience is invaluable.

Preparing to paint outdoors is sort of like assembling gear for a camping trip. If you've never tried, but would like to join in future outings, here's a checklist of things you may want to bring.

- folding, adjustable easel (or pochade box and tripod)
- folding chair or stool (if you don't prefer standing)
- painting or drawing surfaces (canvas/boards/sketch pad)
- palette
- paints/medium
- water in leakproof container (or for oil painters, turpentine or other solvent in leakproof container)
- brushes/palette knives/pencils/pens
- paper towels
- disposable hand wipes
- latex or nitrile gloves (some pigments are toxic!)
- small plastic bag for trash
- hat or visor
- sunscreen
- bug spray
- water/snacks
- camera
- large box lid or other carrier for transporting wet canvas or paper
- a good sense of humor (a must)

■ President's Report

Response to our upcoming shows has been very good!

Our annual member theme show is already full with a couple of just-in-case stand-bys on the list as well. Over 40 artists registered for the "Portraits— Let's Face It" show which will open July 21 in the VTLS space at 1701 Kraft Drive in the Corporate Research Center. From the samples I have seen from a few artists, I think this will be a really fun exhibition!

Coordinator of the show, Robi Sallee, needs a couple more people to help with the intake and hanging of the 50 pieces in the show. It is a big job to hang a show of this size, so let's pull together to assist. Contact Robi at robisallee@hotmail.com.

The reception for the show takes place July 21, 5-7 p.m. Anyone willing to contribute munchies for this fun occasion should also contact Robi.

Awards for the show will be determined by popular vote during the reception. Two lucky winners will take home gift cards to our local art supply store, Mish Mish, in downtown Blacksburg.

This year we are pleased to announce that member Pat Bevan has volunteered to gather photos of the theme show artworks and create a presentation which will then be showcased on www.blacksburgart.org. Pat has put together very specific instructions for submission of the photos by the show participants. Find them in an email that went out May 10 or at this link under theme show web presentation.

Our next show open to all members is the 1 Chair, 22 Artists show set to open on August 5 at the Alexander Black House in Blacksburg. To refresh your memory, this show grew out of our indoor plein air day in an old building in downtown Christiansburg. Photos were taken that day of a lovely old chair sitting in the light of a sunny window. What would happen if a bunch of us painted the same chair in our own way, I asked myself. Next thing I knew, we had a show scheduled and 22 artists signed up to take part. This will be BRAA's second show inside the wonderful Black House.

Registration is closed for both of these shows. Now we just have to enjoy the fruits of our labors. More details on these shows can be found at that same theme show link above.

Your partner in art,

Learn with Lee

Lee Sandstead is often referred to as "the world's most fired-up art historian." Sandstead was host of the Emmy-nominated Travel Channel show, "Art Attack," and author of the number one international best-seller on iTunes, "Cleaning Mona Lisa."

Lee Sandstead

For those of you listening to WVTF NPR this week, a story ran detailing a show in Baltimore, Md., concerning the key artistic personality to Louis XV, Madame du Pompadour. While she — and the art surrounding her — is worth study, I personally have been in love with the museum housing the show, the Walters Art Museum.

Founded in 1934, the collection harkens back to the American Renaissance, where wealthy industrialists were shipping entire cultures back to the United States to display. Today the internationally renowned collection presents an overview of art from pre-dynastic Egypt to 20th-century Europe, and counts among its many treasures Greek sculpture and Roman sarcophagi; medieval ivories and Old Master paintings; Art Nouveau jewelry and 19th-century European and American masterpieces.

The Walters can be considered a second- or even third-tier museum that dots the

Women art leaders sought for fall series

Donna Thompson, a MFA Arts Leadership candidate at Virginia Tech, is working on a project to fulfill her degree requirements and is seeking involvement by area female artists.

The Women Leading the Arts Lecture Series will take place this fall with the goal of linking women artists and art leaders with female students on campus who are studying the arts with plans to join the field upon graduation.

Thompson is exploring both intimate conversations and masterclasses surrounding a theme of "Celebration." She will focus on allowing space for discussion into the history of women in the arts and the obstacles faced, where we are today in the field, and where we are going in the future.

Thompson will spend most of the summer planning for this event and is interested in talking with anyone who would like to be involved.

Plein air continued from page 1

Just like any endeavor, the more you do it the easier it becomes. Most plein air painters have modified their easels with hooks for trash bags and velcro for brush containers and other conveniences. You'll quickly learn what you need, but ideally you'll be able to carry it all from your vehicle in one trip!

Stay tuned to www.blacksburgart.org for upcoming plein air opportunities! ■
